

3.8. supplement - FAgr

These issues related to technology transfer are handled centrally by the Technology Transfer Office (TTO) of the university (<https://www.jctt.cz/en/>). At the Faculty of Agriculture, a technological scout is employed to ensure the communication between the Faculty of Agriculture and the TTO and monitors potentially applicable science & research results arising at the Faculty of Agriculture and presents them to the general public.

Among the results intended for implementation created at the University of South Bohemia, we can mention, for example, the results of the project FV30234 (contractually awarded for 577000 EUR) or the project TAČR TA04021252 (the sale of the entire intellectual property, the contract with the buyer of the company is ready to be signed in 2020, we cannot provide further information due to trade secrets).
